I double-majored in Global Studies and Communications, along with a minor in Applied Economics. Personally, I've always had two potential career paths in mind – one towards the more creative field of writing and advertising, and another that yearns to delve into global politics and macroeconomics. Monash was one of the few universities that offered the flexibility and autonomy of choosing a combination of such areas of specialisation, which I felt aligned well with my preference.”

WHY STUDY ARTS?

There's no better place to study Arts than at Monash.

Our students choose Arts at Monash because they want to make real change. And we prepare them for it by teaching them to question, analyse and interpret the social, political and ethical dynamics of a world of geopolitical upheavals, cultural diversity, and technological transformations.

Our degrees encourage the curiosity to learn new things, the passion to discover new perspectives, and the courage to challenge the status quo – unique qualities that will be in critical demand as governments, businesses and communities seek to understand the intricacies of increasingly interconnected, techno-digital societies.

THE BUILDING BLOCKS OF A MONASH ARTS DEGREE

THE ACADEMIC COMPONENT

Our intellectually rigorous curriculum gives you the academic and research tools to analyse key societal trends and problems. Your studies:

- emphasise critical thinking and problem-solving abilities
- offer the latest knowledge on ongoing real-world issues
- include optimised media technology-related knowledge and various hands-on skill workshops.

THE IMMERSION COMPONENT

Go on study trips to locations within and outside of Malaysia. You'll learn about the diverse and complex socio-cultural and political realities in the world while developing cross-cultural awareness and leadership skills that are highly valued by employers.

THE INDUSTRY EXPERIENCE COMPONENT

Our work-integrated learning units integrate academic learning with workplace experience, guiding you to apply your knowledge and skills to real-world problems and create practical solutions for employers and communities. You'll:

- gain vital industry exposure through internships
- get hands-on and develop practical skills through active learning activities like media campaign simulations, or policy responses and political strategising in the real world.
- have opportunities to engage with social justice and live issues in local and regional communities.

Monash distinguishes itself through a comprehensive curriculum, great faculty, and access to state-of-the-art resources. Its global recognition ensures that my degree will be accepted worldwide, presenting a plethora of opportunities.”

ZAHARUDDIN ZULKIPLI

Master of Communications and Media Studies

Zaharuddin currently serves as a Government Liaison Manager at Huawei Technologies. In this role, he focuses on fostering collaboration and knowledge exchange between the public and private sectors, leveraging insights to support Malaysia's digital transformation. He also contributes to initiatives aimed at building future-ready digital leaders and advancing innovative strategies for a more connected, intelligent world.

Previously, Zaharuddin led the Policy and Strategy Implementation Section at the Ministry of Communications' Content Development Division, where he formulated strategic policies for the creative industry, particularly in film and music.

His goal is to bridge innovation and collaboration, driving meaningful growth in Malaysia's creative and digital sectors while enabling transformative progress for the future.

WHO ARE MONASH ARTS GRADUATES?

CREATIVE LEADERS

With a focus on strategic agile and lateral thinking, our degrees form the perfect springboard for creative leadership. You'll learn to think in versatile and unique ways that will enable you to pioneer solutions to real-world issues, understand a digital media landscape, confidently lead teams at major organisations, and leap into your own entrepreneurial ventures.

COSMOPOLITAN COMMUNICATORS

In a globalising world, skilled communicators are highly sought-after. You'll master cross-cultural and media communication to connect with diverse audiences and build relationships that cross borders. You'll have the skills to deftly shape and influence public opinion, thriving in the rapidly shifting media landscape.

GLOBAL CHANGE INFLUENCERS

At Monash, we inspire an ethos of championing equality and justice that lasts a lifetime. You'll have the blueprint to make a difference in careers with governments and organisations all over the world, approaching complex issues with the versatility and solution-based thinking that inspires positive change.

COMPETITORS

You'll effortlessly translate the learnings of the classroom into professional settings, having all you need to build a reputation for being an analytical, persuasive thinker at the forefront of innovation and disruption in your field.

WHAT CAN YOU DO WITH AN ARTS DEGREE?

Due to its comprehensive nature, a Monash arts degree is compatible with almost any profession imaginable.

Whether in research and academia, excelling within the heart of industry, or grappling with the complexities of policy, diplomacy and humanitarian work, our alumni use the skills they've gained through their education to keep on progressing, expanding their horizons, and making a positive impact on the world. You'll be empowered to do the same.

Job market versatility

Your flexible degree, which combines breadth with depth, will give you the kind of versatility valued by employers. The different perspectives you'll study will allow you to work in different roles, combining knowledge from your majors and minors to develop unique solutions to real-world problems. You'll learn strong communication, intercultural competence, empathy and creative problem-solving – skills and knowledge so sought after, you'll use them in a wide variety of jobs and industries.

Competitive edge

You'll be able to compete in a variety of jobs and industries, including those typically populated by graduates from other disciplines. Your competitive edge comes from your arts and social sciences degree, which trains you to be observant of the many facets of society, to understand and analyse issues from multiple perspectives, and to communicate effectively and persuasively.

Lead change

The arts and social sciences are a valuable route to careers in government, international organisations and non-profits, particularly in the environmental and humanitarian fields. You'll learn how to analyse problems, brainstorm issues and construct viable solutions that lead towards a fairer, more just and sustainable society.

WHERE ARE OUR GRADUATES?

Our graduates have taken their skills and experiences gained, combined with the passion to explore new worlds nurtured during their academic study, to traverse the globe and succeed in varied careers in very different societies and cultures. You, too, can go anywhere with a Monash degree.

GET CAREER READY

The future of work is changing. And you need to keep up. It's vital you learn how to thrive in a competitive and tech-heavy professional landscape. At Monash, you'll gain a thorough grounding in the key skills sought by employers, including agility, lateral thinking and improvisation; skills that surpass automation and are relevant to all careers.

BE IN DEMAND

Arts graduates have the expertise employers want:

- Strong written and verbal communication
- Leadership
- Creative problem-solving and critical thinking
- Intercultural competence and global experience
- Cognitive agility
- People skills.

If you're looking to get job-ready as you hone the creative and critical skills needed for a meaningful career, you belong at Monash Arts and Social Sciences.

INDUSTRY EXPERIENCE

Develop hands-on experience and industry connections as you earn credit towards your degree with a workplace learning internship. Internships can cover a multitude of work placements. If you're majoring in communication, you could be working in a media or events organisation, and with a global studies major, you could intern at an international NGO. You'll develop your understanding of academically-obtained knowledge and skills in the workplace environment, facilitated by academic and work supervisors.

WORK INTEGRATED LEARNING

Employers are looking for graduates with industry experience, which is why our Work Integrated Learning program is so valuable for you. These credit-bearing units teach you how to apply what you've learned to real-world situations and to experience the work environments and tasks you're likely to encounter when you enter the workforce.

Task Force: Responding to global challenges

Work under guidance in multi-disciplinary project teams, or task forces, to produce policy recommendations or other relevant output to address issues and problems of contemporary relevance.

A world in crisis: Multilevel responses to global emergencies

Put your research, negotiation and problem-solving skills to the test in a fast-paced international crisis simulation. Use your team's knowledge of global politics and the media to manage the crisis and achieve your objectives.

Documentary filmmaking and society

Apply theory to practice by producing a documentary film. Get practical experience in every stage of filmmaking, and through industry-relevant assessments designed to build in-demand skills for the digital workplace.

Social media is so heavily ingrained in our lives and they have even become tools to help businesses flourish. I'm interested in learning how the online realm works, which is why I chose to study digital media and communication.

I interned as a social media strategist for a women-led beauty company, and I gained a variety of skills as I was also helping out in other departments, including marketing, product development and sales. I'm grateful that Monash has made this internship unit compulsory as it is very important to prepare ourselves for the work field in the future."

WHERE CAN I GO?

STUDY TRIPS

Immerse yourself in new cultures, put your academic and interpersonal skills to the test, learn to navigate unfamiliar places, and engage with the local people at your destination with our mobility units.

Discovering Asia-Pacific

This unit takes you to countries across the Asia-Pacific region to explore themes and topics such as the environment, human development, everyday identities, democracy, and social movements.

Community and the environment in Malaysia

Delivered through a series of summer study trips to local destinations, this intensive, two-week unit encourages you to engage with topics in conservation, sustainability, and heritage.

INTERCAMPUS EXCHANGE TO MONASH AUSTRALIA

Because you're already a Monash student, studying at our Australian campuses is the easiest way to see the world. The Global Intercampus Program lets you spend a semester in Melbourne with no added costs to your regular course fees.

EXCHANGE TO A PARTNER INSTITUTION

An exchange program involves studying with one of our partner universities around the world. You can go on exchange for one or two semesters, and your overseas study is credited to your Monash degree.

MONASH GLOBAL CAMPUS INTENSIVES

If you'd rather not spend too long away from home, the Global Campus Intensive program is for you. Study a core or elective unit over two to eight weeks at picturesque destinations such as Italy, China, France or Korea.

BACHELOR OF ARTS AND SOCIAL SCIENCES

KPT/JPT (R3/0310/6/0004) 01/31 - MQA/SWA0103

Workplaces of the future need innovative leaders who can see the bigger picture, with the human-focused and transferable skills you'll gain in an arts and social sciences degree.

This course exposes you to important skills that can be transferred to your future workplace. In the process, you'll hone your capabilities to access reliable and trustworthy sources of information, and to interpret and critically evaluate important facts, opinions and key debates which you'll then communicate through critical writing.

You'll develop awareness of important issues and debates in areas such as gender and sexuality, politics, history and contemporary global challenges, human psychology, new developments in media and communication practices, and the study of screen, film and television.

Areas of study

There are five majors you can choose from. You can also add a second major, which will give you two areas of expertise.

- Communication
- Film, television and screen studies
- Gender studies
- Global studies
- Psychology
- Strategic public relations.

Additionally, you're required to take a minor to complement your major. As with the major, you can also choose to do a second minor (see course structure). The majors listed above can also double up as minors if you did not choose them as your majors, or you can opt to do the following minor:

- Writing.

Course Structure

The course is made up of 24 units of study, eight for each academic year. These units are divided up as follows:

- The major – Eight units from the same area of study.
- The minor – Four units from the same area of study (and must be different from your major).
- Electives from Arts – Four units from any area of study in Arts.
- Free electives – Eight units from the same area of study or from different areas. The free electives allow you to structure your course in such a way that you can add either another major area of study, or two minor areas of study, or a combination of one other minor plus electives. Alternatively, you can also take units from other faculties.

CREATIVITY, CRITICAL THINKING, AND HUMAN INTUITION WILL ALWAYS BE RELEVANT.

STRATEGIC PUBLIC RELATIONS

Master the art of shaping perceptions, influencing opinion, and building lasting trust.

This future-focused major gives you a comprehensive understanding of how public relations works across diverse social, cultural, and professional contexts. Turn theory into action through persuasive messaging, crisis management, digital engagement, and campaigns that deliver real-world impact.

Why choose strategic public relations?

Strategic PR is more than publicity; it is the art of crafting messages, building trust, and driving real results for organisations and communities. Here, you'll master bold communication strategies and gain the advanced skills to position and promote any organisation's products, services, achievements, or reputation, reaching both general and specialist audiences with precision and impact.

Units you can take in this area of study:

- Introduction to public relations
- Introduction to professional writing
- Transforming community: Project design and public relations for social campaigns
- Public relations: Cases and approaches
- AI-powered public relations: Social media, digital PR and emerging technologies
- Research methods in the arts and social sciences

- Brand architect
- ESG and sustainability communications
- Crisis and reputation management
- Media relations
- Corporate communications
- Community and stakeholder engagement
- Public affairs and government relations.

WRITING

MINOR

Hone your writing craft.

You'll be introduced to a range of practices in the context of creative fiction and non-fiction and other literary genres, and become familiar with conventions and experimentation in contemporary writing as well as the various techniques involved in its production.

Why choose writing?

Upper-level units offer the opportunity to reflect critically on, and consolidate, your own writing practices as you apply the skills and techniques you have learned in individual and collaborative projects. The emphasis throughout the minor is on writing not only as a means of self-expression and communication, but as a craft that clarifies our individuality and creativity through exploring possibilities and innovations through writing.

Units you can take in this area of study:

- Writing techniques: Forms and literary devices
- Introduction to professional writing
- Strategies in writing experiments
- Writing portfolio.

Career options

- Copywriting
- Journalism
- Advertising
- Research
- Reviewing and editing.

CAREER PATHS

Due to the highly practical nature of this course, there are no shortages of rewarding career opportunities available to you. Our graduates have found careers in:

- academia
- management consulting
- international trade
- human resources
- corporate research and analysis.

BACHELOR OF ARTS (HONOURS)

KPT/JPT (R3/220/6/0018) 12/26 - MQA/SWA0106

This honours degree is a separate but complementary course to the arts undergraduate degree.

If you have an excellent academic record and are interested in pursuing further education, you can apply to engage in an additional year of coursework study and independent research.

Under the guidance of an academic supervisor who's recommended to you by the Honours Committee, you'll design and carry out a research project of your own choosing.

This culminates in a research dissertation that provides you with the perfect opportunity to explore and gain a deeper knowledge of a particular area of study that you're interested in.

Course structure

There are two assessment components to this course amounting to a total of 48 credit points:

- A 15,000 to 18,000-word research dissertation that you must produce at the end of the academic year (24 credit points)
- Two complementary coursework units to equip you with the necessary skills to successfully navigate research issues, methodologies and academic theories (24 credit points).

Areas of study

You'll work on personal research projects relating to any of the following five broad areas of research:

- communication
- global studies
- gender studies
- film, television and screen studies.

Due to the increasingly intersectional nature of these categories, there's truly no limit to the topics that you can work on as part of your dissertation. This course has produced some truly successful and resourceful students in the past.

What will I gain from this course?

Principally, the honours degree is a stepping stone towards obtaining a PhD and, subsequently, pursuing a career in academia.

Over the course of conducting your own research, you'll be able to gain better insight into the processes involved in contributing to a field of knowledge. Additionally, many of the practical skills you'll gain can be applied to other parts of your working life.

The ability of honours degree graduates to embody a high level of independent learning, creative problem-solving, project management, effective communication, and research and investigative skills are directly relevant to many other career prospects.

On campus, I found a community that not only enriched my student life but also my personal life with stimulating conversations and their golden Malaysian sense of humour. It is a sense of belonging that I will cherish forever – one that I've never found anywhere else in my travels. My academic experience and the stories of the people I encountered continue to inspire the work I do.”

NAFISA TABASSUM

*Bachelor of Arts and Social Sciences

Nafisa is a dedicated human rights advocate, currently chairing Amnesty International Canada's Specialised Team on Indigenous Rights, working to ensure Indigenous Peoples are recognised and respected as the original stewards of the land. She envisions a world free from the shackles of colonisation, where equitable public policies prevail and data is harnessed to challenge oppression in all its forms.

MASTER OF COMMUNICATIONS AND MEDIA STUDIES

KPT/JPT (R2/321/7/0015) 03/26 - MQA/SWA0177

Play a leading role as a communicator in the digital economy.

The last decade has seen unprecedented changes in communications and media content, technology and policy – with wide-ranging implications for business, politics, public policy and everyday life.

This course builds your understanding of the changing global contexts of media and communication practices. You'll gain a critically informed understanding of key issues affecting the global communications industry, focusing on the challenges posed by the emergence of digital media, globalisation and increasing levels of cross-cultural exchange.

You'll be introduced to the latest developments and research in communications and media – including in social and online media – always with a view to real-world application.

What will I gain from this course?

You'll master the contemporary skills necessary to participate and manage sophisticated communicative processes in regional, urban, national and international contexts. These include critical thinking, cultural sensitivity, advanced reading and communication skills (written and verbal), and high-level analytical skills. More widely, the degree aims to develop your skills in communications and media research.

This methodological training will enable you to participate in relevant research-based study and give you an edge in today's competitive workplace.

Course structure

CORE STUDIES

- Contemporary communications theories
- Global media industries

RESEARCH FOR CHANGE

Southeast Asia has experienced progressive shifts, including economic growth, improved living standards, advancements in human development and citizen engagement, and greater global interactions.

Yet, there are signs of deep conflict visible in huge economic and social disparities, security challenges, suppression of political and civil rights, environmental degradation, cultural tensions, and clashes over value systems.

By studying social transformation in Southeast Asia with a critical and ethical attitude, we understand the forces that shape our lives and only then can we tackle important issues and effect positive, tangible change for people and communities.

Digital Southeast Asia

The Southeast Asia Research Centre for Digital Tech and Society (SEADS) is driven by our vision of a society where digitally-mediated political, economic and social exchanges are equitable, transparent, inclusive and accountable.

Monash researchers in this strength advance scholarship through critical examination of the relationships between digital technologies and human societies in Southeast Asia.

Migration and mobility in Asia

We examine how technological and infrastructural developments, along with the host country's governing techniques, have created new challenges for migrants in crossing borders and acquiring residency. Planetary crises such as climate change, environmental degradation, and health pandemics are also adding another dimension.

In this research strength, we look into areas including migration aspirations and migrants' agencies, social change, gender, inequality, and migration management and governance.

Thriving communities

Our researchers are guided by issues of marginalisation and heritage in Malaysia and Southeast Asia, with a focus on communities that are disenfranchised, stigmatised and ostracised, and thus excluded from political and social resources.

We also look towards the rich legacies of the country and region, such as political, film and public relations historicities, cultural artefacts, literary and artistic innovations, online religious performances, and local spiritual epistemologies.

Geopolitics, development, governance

We take contemporary disruptions in politics, economics, technology, and ideas as opportunities to question established configurations of power, privilege and perspectives that have sustained national, regional and global orders. Our researchers approach this research area through four key points:

- Asian regional order: Critical geopolitics
- Transnational interactions: East Asia-Southeast Asia
- Contesting law and politics
- Politics of digital technology and governance.

DOCTOR OF PHILOSOPHY

KPT/JPT (N/0300/8/0002) 08/31 - MQA/PSA 17705

Undertaking a PhD at Monash is one of the most challenging and rewarding experiences we can offer you. Be part of a proud tradition of research excellence.

The program consists of an extensive, independent research project in your discipline of choice, supported by a minimum of two academic supervisors throughout your candidature. Your study will result in a research thesis which makes a valuable contribution to the current body of knowledge in your chosen field.

Professional development

This module is a selection of research, teaching, professional and career-related development workshops and seminars designed to give our PhD graduates a competitive edge when it comes to employment opportunities.

It is built around skills that are in demand in a professional environment, including project management, team building, leadership and other soft skills that academia and the private sector value.

Enrolling in the professional development mode will require you to complete a minimum of 120 hours of activities. These activities are offered under two topics:

- Excellence in Research and Teaching, which is designed to develop knowledge, skills and abilities that are immediately relevant to academic life.
- Professionalism, Innovation and Career, which focuses on developing the knowledge, skills and abilities needed to apply your expertise within and beyond academia.

Following these compulsory modules, you're free to explore a variety of modules that are made available online and on-campus. These include a module that encourages you to undertake practical training through teaching and participation in other academic activities, sessions on various methodologies in the humanities and social sciences, and relevant skills and information including workshops on publication and thesis writing.

3 – 4 years (full-time)

6 – 8 years (part-time)*

Your PhD research project is to be conceived from the outset as clearly achievable within three years equivalent full time, and you're expected to complete your degree within three to four years equivalent full time.

CAREER OUTCOMES

As a graduate of this degree, you will have developed finely-honed research skills, a dedicated area of specialisation, in-depth methodological training in your field, and a wealth of academic experience.

A doctoral degree typically helps graduates kickstart careers in academia, and can also open up a wide variety of research and analysis-based roles in external organisations. You'll find that the skills, professional networks, and relationships developed over the course of this degree endure across many different career trajectories and leave you well-positioned to make an impact in industry or community upon graduation.

* Part-time study is not available for international students.

One of the most memorable aspects of my time at Monash was the balance between academic rigour and a supportive, collegial environment. I built lasting relationships with peers, lecturers, and supervisors. Even after returning to Singapore, I stay in touch with some of my former lecturers, speaking to the depth of connection and support I experienced. These relationships have continued to shape both my professional path and personal growth.”

DR KRISHA VISHNIPER

Bachelor of Arts and Social Sciences (majoring in Gender Studies and Global Studies)
Bachelor of Arts (Honours)
Doctor of Philosophy

At Monash, Krisha explored how displacement can serve as a catalyst for empowerment, enabling women to reinterpret or resist conservative gender expectations within their communities. Her findings offered an alternative lens on issues such as early marriage, education, feminine virtue, and statelessness with potential real-world applications in informing refugee and resettlement policies.

Entry requirements

- An Australian bachelor's degree (or equivalent) with a minimum overall WAM of 75.
- Applicants must meet the undergraduate requirements of their chosen Honours area of study including: 48 credit points of studies and obtained a distinction grade average (75%) or above in 24 credit points at level three.
- All eligible applicants must satisfactorily pass an interview.

Note: Applicants with an Australian bachelor's degree (or equivalent) with an overall WAM between 70 and 75 may be considered upon satisfactory completion of an interview. Applicants will only be invited for interview if there are places remaining in the course and a supervisor is available for their chosen area of study.

For some areas of study completion of specific units, or their equivalent, may also be required for admission to honours. The details are provided with the requirements for each area of study to which this applies.

Double degree students

Applicants who are enrolled in an Australian-based Monash double degree course and who have not yet completed the requirements for the two degrees, may be eligible to enrol in this honours program once they have completed 144 points of study, including the normal requirements for the bachelor's degree containing the intended honours area of study.

Double degree students are only required to obtain a distinction grade average (75%) or above in 18 credit points of studies in their chosen Honours area of study at level three.

Additional selection criteria

- Applicants must submit a dissertation proposal with a minimum of 1000 words.

Entry level 2: 72 points to complete | Duration: 1.5 years full-time, 3 years part-time

- An Australian bachelor degree (or equivalent) in a cognate<sup>5</sup> discipline with at least a credit (60%) average; or
- An Australian bachelor degree (or equivalent) and an Australian graduate certificate (or equivalent) in a cognate<sup>5</sup> discipline with at least a 50% average in both qualifications<sup>6</sup>
- Meet the English language requirements of the University (Monash English is accepted).

Entry level 3: 48 points to complete | Duration: 1 year full-time, 2 years part-time

- An Australian bachelor honours degree (or equivalent) in a cognate<sup>5</sup> discipline with at least a credit (60%) average
- Meet the English language requirements of the University (Monash English is accepted).

Additional selection criteria

Applicants will be expected to provide a Curriculum Vitae and reference from their employer to be assessed for relevant work experience as part of the application process. An employee would generally be required to undertake work that requires a level of autonomy and accountability. Employees would be expected to exercise a range of professional capabilities, including strong communication skills, the ability to apply initiative and sound judgment, and analytical and critical thinking skills.

- A bachelor's degree of at least four years in a relevant discipline, which includes a research thesis or project, with a minimum overall average grade of an honours degree equivalent to the Second Class Honours Division A; or
- A master's degree in a relevant discipline which includes a research thesis or project equivalent to at least 25 percent of one year of full-time study, with a minimum overall average grade of honours equivalent to the Second Class Honours Division A; or
- A qualification, or combination of qualifications and relevant professional experience, deemed equivalent by the GRC (or delegate).
- Meet the English language requirements of the University.

6 Part-time studies are not available for international students.

7 Cognate disciplines include: humanities or social sciences.

8 Applicants for the Malaysia offering of this course will require at least 60% average in both qualifications. Applicants with an average between 50% to 60% may be considered if they have at least five years of work experience in a relevant field (as required by the Malaysian Qualifications Agency for applicants with less than CGPA 2.50, equivalent to 60% average).

Entry requirements are subject to change. Please refer to monash.edu.my for the latest updates.
